

Management Discussion and Analysis. The Company operates in a highly competitive industry and its performance depends on monsoon patterns, input costs and regulatory changes. Revenue from operations increased by 12.4 percent during the year, while finance costs declined because of lower average borrowings. The Board continues to review risks including climate related physical risks to manufacturing facilities, transition risks from carbon pricing, and credit risk on receivables. Internal control systems are adequate and commensurate with the size of operations. Human resources remain a key driver of growth and the Company employed 4,210 permanent staff at the end of the year.
